“Honeymoon Dance”

This dance offers guests a chance to have a one-one-one moment with one or both of the you on your big day (and vice versa). You'll have an opportunity to thank them for coming while simultaneously getting some unique photos you wouldn't otherwise have with these folks. The money is just an added bonus! Here's how it works: Guests line up next to the dance floor and "buy" a dance with you from two designated members of your wedding party (one assigned to each of you). These folks accept the money on your behalf and rotate guests in/out as the dance goes along. The music is mid-tempo, so not boring but also not too fast/difficult to move to. It's not so much about the actual dancing or the money as it is the unique moments you get out of it. You may have heard this referred to as a "Dollar Dance" or "Boot Dance", as some couples have their guests pin the bills to their clothing instead, or drop them into a cowboy boot! Regardless, it's the same idea, and though folks may certainly contribute more than $1 (and many do), a $1 bill is plenty to join in.

“Happy Couples Dance”

This is a GREAT way to break the ice and open your dance floor to guests, as opposed to just playing a random song and hoping people get up and start dancing. The DJ invites all the happy couples to join the newlyweds on the dance floor, and plays a classic song anyone can dance to. It's very inclusive and open not just to other married couples, but anyone in attendance with a date, boyfriend, girlfriend, etc. The song will generally be a slower classic most anyone will recognize and be capable of dancing to (think “Unforgettable” by Nat King Cole or “Can't Help Falling in Love” by Elvis Presley). From there, we can ease into more fun songs and ensure everyone hears something they like at your wedding!

“Anniversary Dance”

This is a less-inclusive version of the Happy Couples Dance mentioned above, wherein only the married couples are invited to join the newlyweds out on the dance floor. The song played will similarly be a slower, classic tune most anyone will be familiar with and capable of dancing to. Besides being limited to only the folks who are married, the other difference with this dance is the DJ/MC will dismiss all but the longest-married couple(s) from the dance floor over the course of the song. These remaining (usually older) folks will then be given a chance to offer any marriage tips they have to the newlyweds on the microphone, which are often sweet and/or funny. The important thing to know for the Anniversary Dance to work is that we MUST BE INFORMED of who the last couple(s) dancing will be, and how many years they've been married AHEAD OF TIME. Without this information, the DJ/MC could wind up dismissing every couple, leaving no one on the dance floor at the end of the song and defeating the whole purpose of this dance! ***

Other Special Dances**

Got another special dance or moment you'd like to incorporate into your reception? Let us know and we'll help make it happen! Examples would be things like a fun, choreographed dance with your wedding party, a cultural/traditional group dance, dedications to loved ones, or a college fight song.

Specialty Games!

“The Newlywed Game” a.k.a. “The Shoe Game”

Loosely based on the old TV show, the newlyweds are seated back-to-back on the dance floor and each is handed a glass of white wine and a glass of red wine (your shoes can also be used as props if these drinks are not on hand). Either way, each prop represents one of you. The MC then begins asking a short series of questions about your relationship, and you'll simply raise the corresponding glass (or shoe) to indicate your answers. Neither of you can see the other's answers, but all your guests can see both, hence the fun of the game... They'll witness how consistent or inconsistent your answers are (i.e. “how well you really know each other”), and get lots of laughs out of it! This game is a great way to start loosening folks up and facilitate more fun and dancing a bit later.

“Newlywed Trivia” (requires answers to separate questionnaire)

This optional second part of the game is done with the newlyweds still seated on the dance floor, only now you're turned to face the rest of your guests. It's now the audience's turn to participate, as the MC begins asking the crowd a series of questions based on info you've provided us via a questionnaire beforehand. i.e. “What was the make/model of Alex's first car?” or “Who knows what movie was Tracy's favorite as a kid?” Guests will raise their hands and soon begin shouting out answers, competing to show off their knowledge! Again, the goal is to loosen folks up after our more traditional moments, get them engaged, and create an atmosphere of fun that will carry over to dance time.

“Treasure Hunt”

Six contestants (nominated by the newlyweds) are seated side-by-side in chairs on the dance floor. The MC explains that they are now competing in a treasure hunt, calls out an item and starts an upbeat song. Each contestant must immediately begin searching the room for an item matching that description, and then get back to their chair with it as fast as possible. Items will be simple things such as red lipstick, a pair of sunglasses, something green, etc. It gets tougher as it goes along, and contestants may not use any item on their person... they must find everything elsewhere in the room. Other guests are therefore involved in helping them locate these items, so many people are engaged in this game. The last contestant back with each item will find that one chair has disappeared, and they are eliminated! We continue round-by-round until only one contestant is left standing...er, sitting! This person is the winner. A special prize can be awarded by the married couple or MC here, if desired (gift cards really seem to juice things up!). If not, the respect/applause of the other guests will be the prize.

“Dance Craze Contest”

This one's a lot of fun too, and is typically held for later in the evening. To start with, we'll need at least four volunteers confirmed in advance. When it's time for the game, the DJ/MC summons all willing contestants onto the dance floor, and our confirmed volunteers (joined by several other new participants, typically) will step out. The DJ/MC then numbers each off as individuals (or small groups, if enough join in) and announces, “Alright folks, it's time for the Dance Craze Contest! Contestant/Group #1, please take center stage and tell me a number between one and ten.” After each contestant/group chooses their number, the DJ then plays 30 seconds of the corresponding track from a special “Dance Craze” playlist. Each contestant/group does their best to perform a 30-second dance routine matching the music they hear. Various styles from different eras/genres will pop up, ranging from classic rock to old school hip hop to disco, more modern “crazes” like “Gangnam Style” and perhaps even an oldie like “The Twist”. After each contestant/group has performed for 30 seconds, the DJ will ask the rest of the crowd to vote for their favorite by round of applause. This game is another opportunity to award a small prize, and it typically keeps guests around (and entertained) longer!
